

A brief Biography

Dr. Wataru Fujii is an Assistant Professor in the Graduate school of Agricultural and Life Sciences at The University of Tokyo, Japan. He received his bachelor's degree and master's degree in Reproductive Biology from Okayama University. He obtained his PhD in Animal Genetics from Dr. Kunihiro Naito's lab at The University of Tokyo in 2012. He then got the present position in 2013 after postdoctoral training. He also visited Dr. Monika Ward's lab at the University of Hawaii as a visiting researcher during 2020-2021. Dr. Fujii's current research interests include establishing new biotechnologies for reproductive biology and mammalian animal genetics.

NCBI Bibliography:

<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/myncbi/wataru.fujii.1/bibliography/public/>